

5th Hanseatic India Colloquium
“Innovative Drug Development:
New Concepts for Oncology and Infectious Diseases”

Hamburg, November 11-12, 2010

After the overwhelming response to the past four Hanseatic India Colloquiums organised since 2006, the 5th Hanseatic India Colloquium focussing on: “Innovative Drug Development: New Concepts for Oncology and Infectious Diseases” will take place in Hamburg on November 11th – 12th, 2010. The Hanseatic India Colloquium is organised annually to showcase the progress India has made in recent years in sectors like biotechnology, healthcare and pharmaceutical sciences, to highlight the great potential for cooperation of Northern German and Indian companies in these sectors and to provide an effective platform for close interaction between the CEOs of German and Indian companies. We are pleased to announce keynote speakers of international reputation: Prof. Dr. Rolf Horstmann, Chairman of the Bernhard Nocht Institute for Tropical Medicine based in Hamburg, and Dr. Avinash Shejale, Head of Pharma & Life Science section of SBI Capital Markets Ltd. based in Mumbai.

The Hanseatic India Colloquium will precede a major European Biotech event, the BIO-Europe 2010 that takes place in Munich, Germany, during November 14th – 16th, 2010. In addition, the world’s largest medical trade fair MEDICA will be held in Düsseldorf, Germany, from November 17th – 20th, 2010.

You are cordially invited to participate in the 5th Hanseatic India Colloquium in Hamburg and to contribute to its success.

Further information will be sent to all who make a preliminary registration. For this please contact:
